SEOUl FOOD & HOTel’S CONTINUED SUCCESS

As Korea’s largest International Exhibition, SFH delivers high-quality Korean buyers, decision-makers and industry experts to source premium goods, view worldwide industry trends, and an opportunity to discuss future business ideas across sectors.

Exhibitor profile
SFH covers a wide variety of sectors, bringing professionals together from across the industry.

4 days of specialised events

The Culinary Challenge
The SFH Culinary Challenge returned for its 5th anniversary edition, once again as a WACS (World Association of Chef Societies) endorsed the event and continuing its role as one of Korea’s most important culinary competitions. The 2019 edition was the largest to date and saw over 300 chefs competing — largely from leading chef colleges across Korea, but also with international teams from the Philippines, Malaysia, Taiwan and Thailand as well. The event continues to grow in size and international recognition, and once again saw an improved standard of culinary skill from those competing.

Wine Korea
The Korean wine market continues to grow at an impressive rate — 2018 saw a 16.2% increase in import value from 2017, and the consistent growth over the past 10 years shows no signs of stopping. In addition to this, the diversity of wines available in Korea is also developing and wines from every corner of the world are now seeing an expanded presence in the Korean market. Wine Korea encourages Korea’s leading wine buyers, importers and sommeliers to participate, and gives them a platform to interact and learn more about the international wine producers.

Informative seminars
Wine Korea incorporates a day of informative seminars, lead by the Korean Wine Association — by creating engaging content, the wine industry personnel present at SFH are given a whole day of useful knowledge about the global wine market. After the seminar sessions have ended, a tasting session takes place and all participating wine companies are then passed the contact details of those buyers involved.

The wineries
Participating wineries are also given additional exposure to the Korean market, through dedicated marketing channels before and after the show. With Korea’s largest wine publication Wine Review, informative articles about the wine producers, their product, contact details and availability are shared — meaning the promotion of wine companies through Wine Korea is not limited to 4 days of Seoul Food & Hotel.

Don’t take our word for it...

“Very educational and informative. We are still setting up our bottling operation so our attendance is maybe premature. However, it is a valuable learning experience moving forward. We certainly may see sales directly as a result of the attendance”
Sales Representative, Pleasant Valley Oil Mills Ltd

“We are pleased with the quality of the show. The show is well organised. Very effective in every aspect”
CEO, Crown Products INC

“It is very helpful to understand Korean culture and general consumer expectation or preferences such as packaging style and wording as well as consumer habits and store front displays in Korea”
Sales Representative, Hercules Food Industrial Co. Ltd

“The show is a place for all countries to unite in one place and share their culture through food”
President, Park Tak International Corporation
